

Tentative rubric for grading of presentations:

Physics 174 Presentation Grading Rubric
Framing: Clear introduction to the experiment. Your introduction should include an answer to the question: “What specific puzzle does this paper attempt to solve?”	4 points
Preparation: Quality of slides	4 points
Preparation: Is your preparation practiced and presented confidently and engagingly	4 points
Details of the paper. Your presentation should include sufficient details (accurately presented) for us to understand the paper.	8 points
Highlights: Did you guide us through the paper in a way that highlighted and helped us understand the most important points	4 points
Supplemental information: Where appropriate your presentation should fill in any gaps we are likely to have in our understanding of the paper, providing appropriate supplemental information/background information from outside sources	4 points
Conclusion: Did your presentation reach a final conclusion that enabled us to take away the most significant points from the paper.	4 points
Time management: Did you use good time management? Did you fill the available time without going over? The presentation should be 25-30min long.	4 points
Handling of questions: Answers should show appropriate thought and consideration to the material presented	4 points
Total	40 points